General Return Instructions

Gross Sales:

Sellers are required to report all sales that are generated within CBJ's taxing jurisdiction, regardless if they are taxable or exempt. Sellers can not report net taxable sales.

Service providers. The tax incident falls on the performance of the service. If the service is performed within CBJ's taxing jurisdiction, it is subject to the sales tax. It does not matter where the service was purchased, where the service is billed, or where your customer/client may be located. If you are present in CBJ when the service is performed, the sales tax must be collected on the service.

However, if you are not in CBJ's taxing jurisdiction when the service is performed, the service is not subject to the sales tax. Nor is the service reported on your CBJ Sales Tax Return. Documentation must be maintained to show that you were not in CBJ when the service was performed.

Rental property/lessors. The tax incident falls on the property location. If the property is located within CBJ's taxing jurisdiction, it is subject to the sales tax. It does not matter where the rental agreement was entered into, where the rental is billed, or where the lessee may be located. If the rental property is located in CBJ, the sales tax must be collected on the rental.

However, if the property is removed from CBJ's taxing jurisdiction for the lease term, the rental is not subject to the sales tax. Nor is the rental reported on your CBJ Sales Tax Return. Documentation must be maintained to show that the rental property was removed from CBJ for the lease term.

Retail Sales. The tax incident falls on delivery within CBJ's taxing jurisdiction. If delivery is made within CBJ, the tax applies. See the definition of a retail sale for any questions about delivery in CBJ. For out-of-CBJ sellers, do not report nationwide or statewide sales, only report sales that are delivered into CBJ.

Exemptions:

Sellers must report the totals of all claimed exemptions by exemption category (number) on the sales tax return. Sellers can not lump exemptions into one category. We have listed the most commonly used exemptions on the return form for your convenience in filing. If your exemption does not fall under one of the listed categories, you must use line "G" and specify the code number under which your exemption falls. Failure to identify the proper code number may result in the disallowance of your claimed exemption.

Timely Filing & Payment

The sales tax ordinance allows discounts to sellers that keep their sales tax accounts current. Discounts may not be taken on late-filed returns or on accounts that have an unpaid balance.

All sellers, regardless of their reporting frequency, may take a minimum discount of $10.00. A discount can reduce tax to zero, but cannot create a credit balance.

Quarterly Reporting. Sellers who report on a quarterly basis may take the minimum discount of $10.00 or 1% of the tax due to a maximum of $100.00 which ever is greater. If your tax liability is under $1,000.00, you will want to take the minimum $10.00 discount. If your tax liability exceeds $1,000.00, you will want to take a discount of 1% of the tax due. If your tax liability exceeds $10,000.00, the maximum discount you can take is $100.00.
